Expansion, from latin expansio, is the action and the effect of extend and dilate. One of its immediate meanings relates expansion with growth in space. In this case, we are talking about growth of Mareo in its evolved visual style, which extends to shaping calibrated spaces in relation to the expansion of his consciousness, defining his technique where the balance between black and white, light and shadow, matter and emptiness, ephemeral and eternal, the organic visceral movement and the geometric rational line, they are all present.

Mareo departs from geometries which lend themselves to extend the universe, thus circumscribing its natural territory, its union between sky and earth, in a constant search for sublime from a Kantian perspective, and of spiritual as a manner to connect with the whole.

In its work, we can find matter omnipresent as well as the exam of territory, of landscapes from a philosophical perspective which can relate to oriental concepts when it comes to duality of its interpretations where you can always identify two complementary components to this spiritual platform from which we can understand the universe.
